

Buffers & Files

Smooth, Clean and Fast...

Tammy Taylor "Clean Finish Buffers" are Made in the USA, using a special "Buffing Material" which is Disinfectable and Washable.

Most buffers (conventional sanding blocks) on the market are "not" Made in the USA and they are made from a sponge block, which has been sprayed with glue then abrasive; this is why they leave so much grit while buffing and they "cannot" be Disinfected, also making them too rough to be used for Natural Fingernails and Toenails.

Your Tammy Taylor "Clean Finish Buffers" can be used for Buffing Ridges out of Natural Fingernails, Toenails, Buffing Acrylic Nails, Nail Tips, Gel Nails, Nail Wraps and all types of Nail Enhancements.

How the "Clean Finish Buffer" was created, and how it got its name:

"I created my Tammy Taylor "Clean Finish Buffer", because I had problems with the conventional sanding blocks leaving little abrasive grit filings on my acrylic nail, which would get embedded in the acrylic while I buffed; creating little black specs in the acrylic nail when I finished.

Also... the conventional sanding blocks would start out too rough to buff, then when I would finish with my oil buff, the conventional sanding blocks would get too soft and ragged; taking me way too much time and energy buffing and trying to get my nails smooth, and... they could not be disinfected, so... I would have to throw them away after every client.

Your Tammy Taylor "Clean Finish Buffer" is made out of a special "Buffing Material"; it is Disinfectable and Washable, and there are no abrasive grit filings to get embedded in the nail, making it very clean while buffing; this is why I named it the "Clean Finish Buffer". Also... your Tammy Taylor "Clean Finish Buffer" starts out soft; buffing the nail really smooth - really fast, and your Tammy Taylor "Clean Finish Buffer" can be used with or without oil (I prefer a dry buff first, then I apply Tammy Taylor Conditioning Cuticle Oil to the nail and buff again.)"
